Work: Our School District

Our Vision: Learning for Life

We are a small and relationship-based school district that is a wonderful place to work. We believe a child's education experiences must be relevant to their future. We know books do not teach our children so our greatest focus is on supporting teachers to grow in their use of a variety of instruction and intervention strategies. Recognizing that recruiting and retaining high quality teachers is key to maintaining an excellent school district, we offer an abundance of support through our robust 2-year Induction Program.

New teachers are provided a building and/or content mentor, are assigned an Instructional Development Coach who serves as a resource and support for the concerns new teachers face, and participate in on-going professional development that is relevant to teachers' needs.

Additionally, Canon City Schools has adopted a Self Empowered Learning Framework that includes Traits and Skills we believe are required for developing the whole person and life long learners. And we have four Core Beliefs that guide our work. They are:

Our Core Beliefs:

- 1. Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs before Bloom's Taxonomy*
- 2. Learning growth matters most, requires risk-taking, and the work we do in our schools has the greatest impact on this.*
- 3. We're future focused, believing the long-term development of certain traits and skills best prepare our students for future careers*
- 4. We emphasize what is good for kids over the needs and comfort of adults.*
