PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Nothing comes from doing nothing, William Shakespeare. Though this quote has five words, it speaks volumes on behalf of the Tiger students, staff, and community, who have done plenty. I want to show my appreciation to the 113 members of the Tiger staff for their courage and willingness to make change happen at the high school. In the past six years, we have implemented Capstone for all students, provided each of them with an internship experience in our community, changed our curriculum to offer career experiences that are both engaging and critical to success in the post-secondary environment, and become a place of empathy and safety for our students. None of this happens because we adopt a wait-and-see mentality. We take risks, work hard, adapt when we learn, and care deeply about what happens to the children in our building when they become young adults.

We have not let up on supplying opportunities for students to learn in the after-school environment. Sports, performances, activities, clubs, field trips, and festivities are at an all-time high. We strongly encourage your students to participate. A student tied to school through multiple activities is naturally more inclined to take academics more seriously.

Thanks for your support!
Bill Summers
Principal, Cañon City High School

YEARBOOK

Yearbook is a class where students get to practice a wide range of skills that include photography, interviewing, writing copy and graphic design. The yearbook staff works hard to capture the culture and story of our school a story that's unique to CCHS. This means they have to learn the stories that make CCHS life special, capture those stories with photos and bring the photos to life by writing captivating captions.

Third and fourth quarters are busy times for the yearbook staff. Students are busy finishing up the book so that we can hit our spring completion deadline. This can get stressful, so we make sure to relax and have some fun team building moments too!

You'll see yearbook staffers with their cameras all over campus and at many of our CCHS events. Give them a smile, they're working hard to create a memorable yearbook that will be cherished for a lifetime!
